History

This temple consists of a garbhagraha an antarala a sabhamandapa a mukhamandapa and a spacious parakara wall. An Anjaneya idol is enshrined in the ggarbhagraha. In the sabhamandapa are four free standing pillars. In the antarala as the left side is a Tulasi Brindavana with sculptures on the sides. The mukhamandapa has an arch like doorway and two free standing pillars. In the mukhamandapa is a Krisna-Sakhis sculpture. Except the front one all the prakara walls are built later. The Prakara walls have freestanding pillars set in rows. In the prakara walals are two small mandapas. Their doorframes are decorated. Nagara style sikharas are engraved over the lalatabimba. The temple stands on an adhisthana. Over the garbhagraha is a recently constructed sikhara.
